

The Chilly Bowl

A freezable dog bowl that will keep Fido's drinking water cold for hours.

The Chilly Bowl is hollow and has a removable cap in the bottom for the owner to add water. Put the bowl in your freezer to create a dog bowl sized ice cube that your pet can drink out of. The added weight of the water gives the Chilly Bowl the advantages of a heavier bowl.

The coverPlug, Inc. family of household products includes the coverPlug™, the SockTube™ and other innovative products in development.

If it's 90° in your house, your pet's water is also 90°!

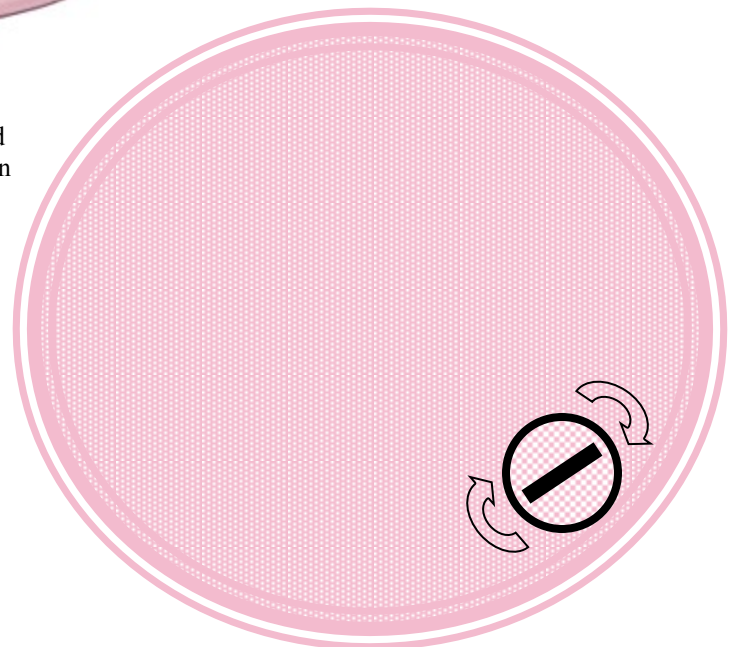

Give your pet cool water to drink, and keep it cool for hours.

The hollow-walled dog bowl allows the pet owner to fill the bowl's sides and base with water, through an opening in the bottom. The bowl is then put in the freezer. The frozen bowl is filled with drinking water, which will keep cool for several hours and provide the advantages of a weighted bowl.

Molded bowl is hollow allowing approximately two quarts of water to be held inside.

Recessed cap is unscrewed so that the hollow bowl can be filled with water, making it weigh about 4 pounds.

Freeze the water filled bowl. Use the frozen bowl to keep your pet's drinking water cold, in a dish that's hard to tip over.

The frozen dog bowl would be made from an molded ABS compound that has slight expansion characteristics. Although there are no frozen dog bowls available today for comparison, there are weighted bowls readily available from about $7 to $15. This product could easily be manufactured for less than $2.

Advantages of the frozen dog bowl:

Drinking water stays cold for several hours because it is surrounded by a block of frozen water.

Adding the water to the bowl adds weight, making the bowl less likely to tip over or be moved around.

Consumers may want to purchase two bowls and alternate between the freezer and the pet's feeding area.

Water is added by the consumer, making the product much lighter to ship and handle.
